The Telephone Box

Looking after the telephone box/library in Madresfield has been a pleasure. Every few weeks we open the door to check what's going on. Unfortunately we have a leak, but can't work out where it is coming from so occasionally we have to remove a sopping book or three but on the whole all is well on our visits; until recently, that is. We opened the door and couldn't work out what had happened. Most of the books had gone; the library was empty, well almost, one or two books had been left.

We decided to turn this into a positive event and have a spring clean. The picnic table was set up, no table cloth I'm afraid, the books, what was left of them, were all taken out and all spiders, wood louse and other unknown insects were evicted. Obviously that was Allan's job, I don't do insects. Once they were gone we gave the box a good clean. This was a challenge as there is no plug inside, an oversight by British Telecom obviously. We had to adopt the Victorian method of cleaning, a broom and dustpan and brush. To finish off, the windows were cleaned. We have discussed finding the leak and touching up the paintwork but that's another job for another day!

Marguerite and Allan Barnwell

We are really pleased that you enjoy the books, but please, bring a few back.

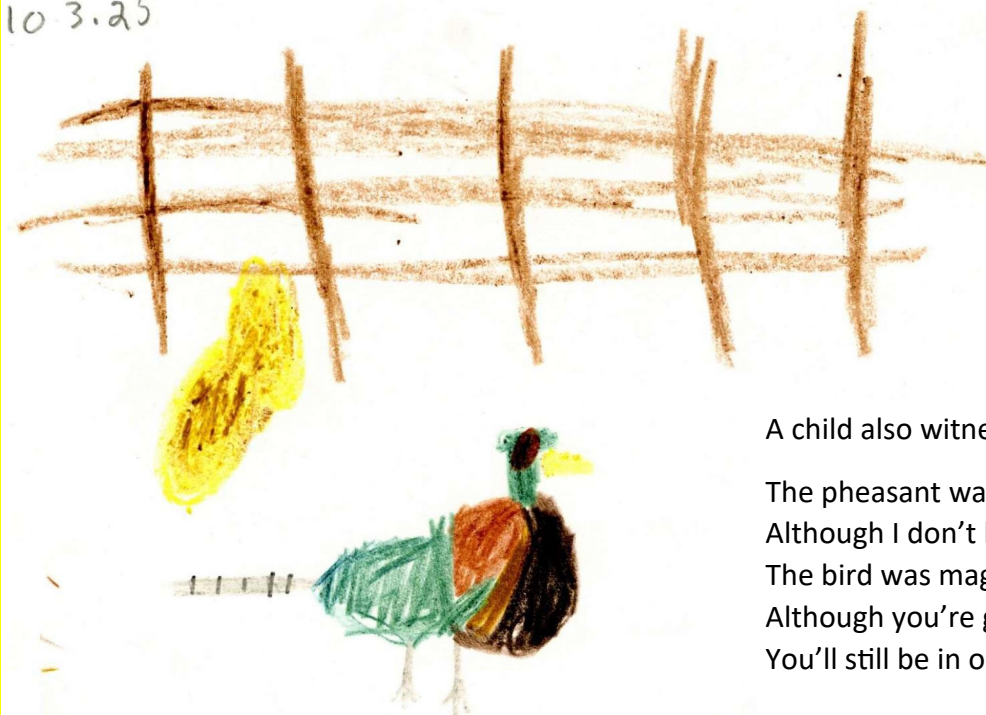

Once upon a time, a lovely pheasant lived in some local gardens. Sadly, one late afternoon, it was found dead on the road nearby. Residents were inspired to remember its natural beauty and charm.

Our lovely pheasant

Late Sunday afternoon you were in my field
Pecking the grass
Relaxed and content
Coming up close to the barn.
Now you are dead on the road,
Your beautiful plumage can be seen.
Why would you try to cross the road?
You were safe in our fields.
We are all sad
Our lives are emptier without you
Rosemary Boaz

The pheasant was nice although I don't like birds The bird was magnificent beautiful strong although you're gone you still be in our hearts

10.3.25

A child also witnessed the accident and wrote:

The pheasant was nice
Although I don't like birds.
The bird was magnificent, beautiful, strong.
Although you're gone
You'll still be in our hearts.

Commemoration Poppies

The 80th Commemoration of V E Day was celebrated in Guarlford and Madresfield with displays of many poppies, which had been knitted, crocheted and sewn over the last few months.

The well in Madresfield churchyard was decorated with a beautiful fall of poppies, set up by Marguerite and Allan Barnwell and Mel Newport.

In Guarlford, Judith Knott led the project with the ladies of the WI and Maidie, who used to live in the village, creating lovely displays beside the war memorial by the main road (see picture on page 10), plus more inside St Mary's church, with an accompanying exhibition of photographs. Felt poppies surrounded the memorial board, with knitted and crocheted poppies at other spots in the church, including a beautiful cross on the altar.

Visitors also saw purple poppies (see picture on the left), which commemorate the animals who have served in wartime or other emergencies, and there were the stories of some of those who were awarded the Dickin medal, known as the Animals' V.C.

One story was about Judy, a pointer who was a ship's mascot in Singapore in the Second World War. Judy would warn the crew if danger was near; she helped to save sailors when their ship was torpedoed and found fresh water when they stumbled ashore. When they were captured, Judy accompanied them on long treks to Japanese prison camps. One guard wanted to shoot her, but luckily the commandant of the camp liked dogs, so she was spared. In fact Judy was eventually declared an official Prisoner of War, POW 81A. She would go hunting for food and bring it back to the camp, fought off scorpions and snakes and, importantly, distracted the guards when the men were being beaten. Judy was a great morale booster just by staying with the men.

Her particular companion was Leading Aircraftman Frank Williams, who shared his rations with her, and they became inseparable. At the end of the war, Judy was eventually smuggled onto the ship taking the men home to the UK, and finally Frank took her to what is now Tanzania, where she is buried.

The citation for her Dickin medal reads:

'For magnificent courage and endurance in Japanese prison camps, which helped to maintain morale among her fellow prisoners and also for saving many lives through her intelligence and watchfulness.'

Another story was about a little black and white cat called Simon who was on HMS Amethyst between May 1948 and September 1949. During the Chinese Civil War, the ship was cruising along the Yangtze River when it came under fire from the PLA artillery and received more than 50 direct hits. The captain was killed and many injured, including Simon, who suffered shrapnel wounds to his legs and burns to his back, and the ship was stranded mid river for almost ten weeks. It was hot and humid, perfect for big fierce rats, who attacked the ship's food supplies. But in spite of his wounds Simon courageously hunted them down, even killing one particularly vicious rat, nicknamed Mao Tse-Tung, for which the crew promoted Simon to Able Seaman.

As the weeks went by, Simon continued protecting supplies and lifting his injured shipmates' morale when he joined the Maintenance Officer on his daily rounds. He later received the Amethyst campaign ribbon for 'distinguished and meritorious service... you did single-handedly and unarmed stalk down and destroy 'Mao Tse-tung' a rat guilty of raiding food supplies which were critically short. Be it further known that from April 22 to August 4, you did rid HMS Amethyst of pestilence and vermin, with unrelenting faithfulness.'

Like Judy, Simon was brought to the UK with the crew, and he was awarded the Dickin medal. Sadly Simon died before a special award ceremony took place, and he is buried in the PDSA cemetery in Ilford. On his gravestone is written that 'Throughout the Yangtze Incident his behaviour was of the highest order'.

THE VICAR'S BLOG

For God alone my soul waits in silence;
from him comes my salvation.

He alone is my rock and my salvation,
my fortress; I shall never be shaken....

For God alone my soul waits in silence,
for my hope is from him.

He alone is my rock and my salvation,
my fortress; I shall not be shaken.

On God rests my deliverance and my honour;
my mighty rock, my refuge is in God.

Trust in him at all times, O people;
pour out your heart before him;
God is a refuge for us....

Once God has spoken;
twice have I heard this:
that power belongs to God,
and steadfast love belongs to you, O Lord.

For you repay to all
according to their work. Psalm 62 vv NRSV

Have you ever prayed to God as if you are on the phone to Him? Maybe you remember the days of coins and phone boxes and the bib, bib, bib to insert more money to get more time. Now, with all-inclusive call plans on our phones, we could be engaged (pardon the pun) for as long as we like. Are you? Am I? I admit I have done this myself whilst recuperating. I would call God's 24/7 Help Line, then spend more than a few moments asking God for a whole host of things before putting the phone down. Is there anything wrong with that sort of prayer, do you think? I would recommend an alternative call approach - imagine I had been ringing a close family member instead of God. Such a phone call would involve listening to the other person, and that it would be a two-way conversation. If we'd rung our parents or siblings and simply read a shopping list of demands, well can you imagine the result!

Often we can find it difficult to find time for God, and when we do stop and seek Him out, our brains or our mouths are full of speech. We batter God with requests and petitions; we tell Him what we want; and we point out what would be best for us and our world! In doing so, we fail to listen to God.

Psalm 62 reminds us that we need to try and find space in our busy lives just to be silent with God, and when our everyday life tries to intrude, just gently put those thoughts to one side, and go back to silence. Having some time out of ministry, to rest and recuperate after surgery, has given me an unexpected lull to practice what I preach in relation to prayerful living. God speaks to us! Do we listen or are we on answerphone mode all the time? Prayer is a two-way communication and sometimes God speaks to us through our thoughts and emotions, and occasionally as amazing as it may seem through a voice, or through someone else. As the Psalmist says, 'For God alone my soul waits in silence'. Who knows what God will have to say if we wait in silence for Him to speak. Every blessing - Rev Gary

GUARLFORD WI

Our speaker in April was Christine Armstrong, who told us of the amazing cycling trips she and her husband undertook after they retired.

Taking only what they could transport on their bicycles, they left home in England for many months at a time and, in several trips, they visited four continents, 37 countries, and cycled fifteen thousand miles.

Christine's talk was illustrated with photographs of some of the wonderful sights they saw on their adventures. One thing she mentioned was that the helpfulness and hospitality of people in every country restored their faith in human nature. So a very uplifting and inspiring evening for us all.

In late April some of our members enjoyed a visit to Dell House Gardens in Malvern Wells. We were given an introductory talk by the owners, who outlined the history of the garden, and after looking round the beautiful garden we had tea and cake in the sunshine. What more could we want!

In early May the Appleyard Morris dancers, who are a ladies troupe, visited our WI, and together with a group of musicians entertained us with their lively dances. After that members were invited to learn some simple ones. Good fun for everyone and a very successful evening.

Firstly, watch how it's done.

Secondly, have a go.

Some of our members worked hard knitting poppies then making a display on the war memo, and they were an eye catching sight on VE day

Paula Parsonage

Newland News 25

Well - we have been hit by an arsonist; both bus shelters belonging to Newland Parish Council on either side of the Worcester Road have been burnt down. No one knows why or to what end other than to inconvenience the bus-using residents of Newland. It is a sad sight when you look at the remains.

On a happier note, my ever-practical sister said to Mum instead of leaving money to buy a memorial bench for the Beauchamp gardens why not buy it now and sit on it yourself. We are now the proud owners of a lovely teak bench. The pictures are the views looking east and west from the bench.

The gardens are coming up lovely and all my roses except Lady Marmalade has flowered and she will be out soon, looking at the buds.

The garden club has been on an outing, having hired community actions bus and with Duncan our warden driving we headed off to Hampton Court Gardens, the original near Leominster, not the 16th century imposter built by Thomas Wolsey near London. The weather was very kind and everyone seemed to enjoy exploring all the different kinds of garden laid out round the house. We retired to the Orangery café for homemade sandwiches and cakes; must say I love a good homemade cake.

The poetry group goes on well here and we had to pick our favourite poem to read. This I found much harder than you would think. We did not study much poetry at school or the only one I remember is Seamus Heaney, so my favourites change depending on the day I am having and my mood.

After a bit of a struggle, I have managed to turn off predictive text on my phone after it caused a great deal of confusion. I now begin the battle to turn it off on the laptop. I am not in favour of allowing my laptop or AI to guess what I am thinking. I need to sit and express myself my own way not how a computer thinks I should express myself.

Music has Wings

Plato said of music that 'It gives a soul to the Universe, wings to the mind, flight to the imagination, a charm to sadness, gaiety and life to everything.' That's so true.

The first quarter of the recent folk concert at Guarlford Village Hall saw Keith Hyett on acoustic guitar, his fingers rippling over the strings like water over reeds, plucking occasionally like a twig caught up in the gentle flow. His various pieces comprised a sedative, like watching the tide tiptoeing in and creeping out or the soothing flames of a dying fire.

Then - imagine the magically magnetic musical charm of the Pied Piper, or Romeo playing a romantically compelling air on his treble recorder under a certain balcony. John Davis on his treble recorder was one half of the duo Unearthed from Gloucestershire. He stimulated the toe-tapping and the shoulder-shuffling among the audience, his gaiety complemented and enhanced by Nathan King on his electric guitar. That was the second quarter of the evening.

'Nibbles'

'Nibbles' filled the intermission but far exceeded the anticipated crisps and nachos.

The second half of the programme mirrored the first half, Keith followed by John and Nathan, and a memorable evening was rounded off with a raffle.

Cora Weaver

Report from Guarlford Village Hall

Guarlford Village Hall has enjoyed several popular events this year as progress is being made towards fundraising to refurbish the small downstairs meeting room. This will be known as The Peter Mayner Room and will have its own kitchenette attached. Lots of ideas for using this room have already been suggested such as a cosy book club, craft group or regular talks and discussions on a range of diverse subjects etc.

In February, the hall played host to several talented local artists who put on an incredible display of their work. Our visitors enjoyed learning about calligraphy with many people even having a go themselves. Nearly everyone who visited took advantage of the drop-in café with some lovely homemade cakes to sample

Our Easter quiz was held in March, again organised by Richard. As usual it was great fun with a super range of questions. The supper of soup and bread followed by home-made apple pie went down well with everyone.

In April, following requests from some of our local residents, the village hall hosted a Psychic Night. This was an interesting, relaxed and friendly evening hosted by Shirley Ford, 'The Angel Lady'. Shirley spoke with several of the people in the audience, bringing back happy memories from their past and offering them good wishes for their future health and well-being.

Our first Folk Concert took place in May and was a great success. The Folk duo, 'Unearthed' were joined by guitarist Keith Hyett and between them they entertained the audience for two hours with a range of beautiful music from the serene to lively jigs. During the interval everyone enjoyed a light supper of quiche and salad. A very enjoyable evening which will hopefully be repeated.

The next event in the village hall will be the Barn Dance on 28th June, to book a place email the secretary on guarlfordvillagehall@gmail.com

See page 16 for more details.

The Trustees of the village hall are always keen to hear what the community would like from their village hall and would like to invite you to come along to their next open meeting to have your say. This will be the AGM on 11th June. At this meeting The Trustees will report on what has been achieved over the past year and what is planned for the coming year. There will also be an opportunity to examine the accounts to see what the money has been spent on.

If you are unable to come to the meeting but would like to make suggestions or ask questions, the Trustees would still love to hear from you, just drop an e-mail to the address above and someone will get back to you. The Trustees look forward to seeing you at one of our future events.
